Arena project to cost more: Report

Report shows changes to roadways, LRT station and pedway over 104 Avenue will cost above and beyond $450 million Cost overruns a concern, despite possibility project could be done for less: Coun. Ed Gibbons

Money for roadwork, LRT links and a pedway bridge are not included in the $450-million cost of a new downtown arena, according to a city report.

The report, to be discussed by council today, reveals that the infrastructure is the responsibility of the city, and "would be over and above the $125 million commitment of the City of Edmonton towards the arena building."

"It's a concern anytime we're above and beyond the committed $125 million," said Coun. Kerry Diotte. The estimated cost for the work is $32 million.

"One of the few things that stuck out was can we build the LRT for $32 million?" said Coun. Ed Gibbons.

"How much will the 104 Avenue skywalk cost?"

Gibbons said he feels $32 million "seems cheap."

Family hopes to preserve historic home

As of midnight tomorrow, Jinny Hilliard will no longer have access to the home her grandfather built in 1912.

Former mayor of Edmonton H.M.E. (Harry) Evans built the Sylvancroft historic home on 1.9 acres of land on 127 Street and Stony Plain Road.

The home left the hands of the family after Hilliard's aunt, Sylvia Evans, died in 2007 at the age of 96.

David Holdsworth, city heritage planner, said the city is working with the developer, who has applied to subdivide the land in hopes of keeping the home and perhaps the stables intact.

"I ... think it would be a great historical museum opportunity," said Hilliard, noting most aspects of the home remain authentic to nearly 100 years ago.

"It's on our inventory, on our wish list of buildings we would like to have restored," said Holdsworth.

The family is hosting an open house today between 3 p.m. and 6:30 p.m.

Ticks spur Lyme-disease warning

- Five ticks retrieved from pets tested positive for the bacteria responsible
- People urged to cover up

SHELLEY WILLIAMSON
@METRONEWS.CA

Pet owners are being warned Fido may bring more than muddy paws home.

Five ticks tested positive for Lyme-disease bacteria after hitching rides on Edmonton and Calgary dogs and cats.

"Ticks like to climb on the tip of tall grass or bushes so when you walk by or your animal walks by and rubs against it, they transfer. Then they latch on to your skin and will burrow in to bite and feed on your blood," said Dr. Andre Corriveau, Alberta's chief medical officer of health.

"The first thing that will happen is a rash will develop around the site of the bite and it will look like a bull's eye," said Corriveau, adding fever, malaise and joint pain can follow suit.

Tick tidbits

► There were 20 human cases of Lyme disease in Alberta between 1989 and 2008, all which are thought to have been picked up outside the province.

► For more information visit myhealth.alberta.ca. If you suspect Lyme disease call HealthLink at 780-943-5465 in Edmonton.

Owner Sarah Burgett said it won't affect her outings with bulldog Dozer.

"We usually check him anyway because he's gotten spider bites before," said Burgett.

If you find a tick, remove it with tweezers and place the critter in a container, and if symptoms arise bring the pest along with you to the doctor, said Corriveau.

► Albertans are being warned to check pets, like this bulldog Dozer, and themselves for ticks after five pets were recently linked to Lyme-disease-carrying species of the pests.

Coffee controversy too pricey to undo: Councillor

After reviewing documents signed by the City of St. Albert and Starbucks, one councillor against the business decision doubts it will be reversed.

"The risk is there would be some cost," said Coun. Malcolm Parker. "I don't know how other members (of council) think (or) feel.

'I was too trusting': Murdoch

Summoned by British lawmakers yesterday to account for a phone hacking and bribery scandal, Rupert Murdoch said he was humbled and ashamed but accepted no personal responsibility, insisting he was at fault only for trusting the wrong people at a now-defunct tabloid that made up a tiny portion of his vast media empire.

The 80-year-old media tycoon endured a three-hour grilling from lawmakers and escaped attempts to draw to tar him with individual blame for the scandal that has rocked his empire.

The scandal has become a page-turner of a drama, with scenes of private detectives hacking phones, cops being bribed for news tips, politicians being wine and dined and a murdered teenager whose phone messages were intercepted. And only a fraction of the nearly 4,000 people whose information was hacked are known and the police investigation appears to be widening.

"This is the most humble day of my career," said Murdoch.

He said he lost sight of News of the World because it is such a small part of his company and spoke to the editor of the paper only around once a month.

James Murdoch, 38, apologized for the scandal, telling British lawmakers

Teen charged in parents' murder

► 17-year-old charged as an adult
► Alleged to have hosted party while bodies lay in bedroom

Neighbours in Port St. Lucie, Fla., knew Tyler Hadley as a polite and respectful teen — not as someone who could kill his parents and throw a party while their bodies lay in a locked bedroom.

The 17-year-old made his first court appearance yesterday after being charged in the killings of his parents, Blake and Mary-Jo Hadley, whom authorities say he bludgeoned with a hammer Saturday. A motive remains unclear.

While Hadley currently is charged with second-degree murder, prosecutor Tom Bakkedahl said it's all but certain a grand jury will indict him on more serious charges.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Timeline

- As police tell it, Hadley's parents were attacked Saturday afternoon outside their bedroom, where their bodies were brought and covered with varied household items, and the door was locked.
- A party Hadley had posted on Facebook went on as planned, with as many as 60 guests having such a raucous time that police were called about 1:30 a.m. with a noise complaint.
- Later, tipped off that a murder may have taken place, they returned to the home at about 4:24 a.m. Inside the master bedroom, they found the bodies.

Health apps to get checkup

- ▶ U.S. plans oversight of some medical applications for mobile devices
- ▶ Guidelines will deal with apps that present a risk to patients

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration is taking steps toward regulating the rapidly expanding field of medical applications, or apps, for smartphones and other handheld devices.

With the rise of the iPhone, Android and other mobile devices has come a flood of apps designed to help people stay healthy.

Industry analysts estimate there are already more than 17,000 medical apps available, ranging from calorie counters to programs that let doctors see medical scans on their phones.

The FDA says it will begin regulating a handful of these programs that pose the greatest risk if they don't work properly.

A draft proposal says the FDA will regulate apps that combine with medical devices such as heart monitors that transmit to a smartphone.

Nashville spurns call centre after layoffs

A U.S. call-centre company that laid off 1,200 Canadian workers — without warning, compensation or even their final paycheques — has lost a major deal with the City of Nashville.

Officials of the Tennessee capital said yesterday they were no longer in discussions with New York-based IQT Solutions to locate the business there.

Nashville had earlier said it would give the company $1.6 million in incentives to create 900 jobs in the city.

"We are dismayed about what happened in Canada and don't think workers anywhere should be treated that way," city official Matt Wiltshire said in a statement.

The Quebec and Ontario governments, meanwhile, are meeting the laid-off workers to see what can be done to help.

About 600 workers were laid off at offices in Oshawa, Ont., as well as 450 in Laval and 140 in Trois-Rivieres, Que., in a move that employees described as "savage."

Labour laws generally require employers to give two weeks' notice of a layoff and a minimum of four per cent of salary earned in the last year, generally considered vacation pay.

The Quebec labour board could take legal action against the company for not paying workers their outstanding wages and other money owed under Quebec laws on layoffs.

netic structure definitely came from the Neanderthals. And that applies to everyone who did not originate in sub-Saharan Africa.

The Neanderthals, you'll recall from school and the funny pages, were those not-quite ready-for-prime-time near-humans who were rendered extinct by the vastly superior Cro-Magnons — that is, us.

Neanderthals were typically depicted as knuckle-draggers with low-sloping foreheads and a tendency to bash first and ask questions later. The story was they didn't have the intellect — or the looks — to overcome their fate.

"Discovery News, in an attempt to set the record straight, reports they possessed the gene for language and had sophisticated music, art and tool-making skills, and their cranial capacity was as large as or larger than the competition's. It all adds up to sexy and smart if you're a Cro-Magnon looking to hook up."

You'd better get in touch with your inner caveman, because there is conclusive evidence that our ancestors found their Neanderthal cousins attractive after all, maybe after a few fermented grain infusions, and those prehistoric boogie nights live on as part of our X chromosome.

The Neanderthals, like Britney Spears, were mainly victims of bad press. Discovery News, in an attempt to set the record straight, reports they possessed the gene for language and had sophisticated music, art and tool-making skills, and their cranial capacity was as large as or larger than the competition's. It all adds up to sexy and smart if you're a Cro-Magnon looking to hook up.

All this transpired between 30,000 and 50,000 years ago, which means that unless there are undiscovered cave paintings revealing exactly what happened, it's pretty much a matter of idle speculation, which has never stopped us before. You can bet, though, that despite all the sophisticated music and art, this smoking X chromosome is the result of some pretty dangerous liaisons: "No, you can't take her to the mastodon hunt. She's not your genotype."

Of course, this is a godsend for those of us looking around for someone else to blame. "It's not my fault I got rib sauce all over my shirt front. My X chromosome is nine per cent Neanderthal." For those of us who are politically correct, this is our cue to start feeling guilty for persecuting the Neanderthals. Obviously, they were here first. They invented fire. And in return, all we've ever done is steal their stuff, tell them sweet little lies and slander them in our textbooks. We've got a lot to answer for.

Scientists from the Canadian Fossil Discovery Centre in southwestern Manitoba have dug up two mosasaurs — a huge predatory reptile known as the T. Rex of the sea. The dig site has also uncovered a prehistoric squid and bird skeletons, as well as two other as-of-yet-unidentified fossils.

The museum is already home to the largest mosasaur in Canada — a 13-metre-long creature called Bruce — but curator Anita Janzic said the new find is significant.

"It was not just this big, wide, open sea," she said. "It's giving us some new insight into what the seaway was like — a more shallow marine than some of the other places are thought to be. That is changing how we are looking at the seaway and that, to me, makes this site very interesting." Some of Canada's richest deposits of marine dinosaurs are found in the soil of Morden, about 100 kilometres southwest of Winnipeg.

If you like mayo, you can lay it on really thick

Who knew a disagreement about mayonnaise could lead to an all-expenses-paid divorce?

With marriage breakups as common these days as coffee runs, at least one well-known consumer product is cashing in on the heartbreak.

Miracle Whip announced its Not for Every Relationship contest, which allows couples to submit videos to the brand's YouTube channel on how the condiment has helped or hindered their relationships.

The winner gets $25,000 towards the cost of a wedding or divorce.

"The Not For Every Relationship contest was inspired by social media conversations about consumers' love or hate for Miracle Whip in the context of their own relationships," Sara Braun, director of Miracle Whip, said in a statement.

It is an extension of the company's We're Not For Everyone marketing campaign, which celebrates the lovers and haters of Miracle Whip.

"Knowing the condiment isn't universally loved has given us licence to focus on the notion that it can actually make or break relationships," she said.

No damsel in distress

► The Captain America leading lady is about to be very famous, but she's trying not to think about that

NED EHRBAR
METRO WORLD NEWS
SCENE@METRONWS.CA

British actress Hayley Atwell has wasted no time in establishing herself. Her first film gig out of drama school was Woody Allen's Cassandra's Dream in 2007. Now she's taking on one of Earth's mightiest heroes in Captain America: The First Avenger as Peggy Carter, a British agent and love interest for the super-soldier who also happens to be quite handy with a machine gun. Atwell sat down with Metro to talk about making her mark, finding good roles and returning to the stage.

Have you thought about how much your profile could be raised once this movie comes out?

No, I haven't. I really haven't. Because you can't really expect anything, really. You're kind of trying to take every moment and experience as it comes, and also be very independent of it and not have too many expectations of how the film will be received.

I hope, if anything, that it would mean that I could get the experience or the opportunity to work with other directors I wouldn't have in the past because they wouldn't have seen my work. So in that respect, I hope that's a positive thing to come out of it, but apart from that I think it's kind of out of my hands. The world will decide what they want to do with it.

Your character is far from a damsel in distress. In fact, she's a hero in her own right.

I loved that in the script and thought she was so strong and capable and a match for him. They needed each other, there was a kind of a weakness in him that she was able to help and to guide.

What I liked about her is — it seemed in the script and I really hope it comes across in the film — she really likes him for who he is. It felt like a very innocent, sweet relationship.

Is it difficult to find roles like that, that are so interesting and well-defined?

There's been amazing roles for women through the ages of film and literature. I don't think there's a shortage of it.

I suppose it's just that there's so many more actresses now, so there's more competition.

But also the fashion of the image of what actresses should look like has, I think, kind of steered the focus away from these incredible qualities that women have to more of the aesthetics, which means some actresses could tend to focus more on that aspect of it.

Not to badmouth anyone at all, but you kind of sometimes watch films and go, 'Really? Is that a good role model? I don't think so.' Surely we've moved on from that.

You're also very active in the theatre, where that problem doesn't exist as much.

I've always wanted to go back and do that because it's always been really important to me, because it does scare the living day-lights out of me and keeps me acutely aware of exactly where my skills or my weaknesses are more than anything else.

I feel like on the stage I have more of an opportunity to learn and to work with some real magicians.

How do you think the London theatre scene compares to New York?

I haven't spent enough time in New York in terms of getting a sense of how the plays are, but what I thought was brilliant is the plays that do well in the West End transfer to Broadway — you have Jerusalem or Through a Glass Darkly or The Pride, all this stuff, which is great.

It means that those plays are starting off in Britain and having a life elsewhere. America seems to be very responsive and welcoming to that and wants to kind of celebrate those plays.

But you've got some of the greatest playwrights ever — Tennessee Williams, Arthur Miller, incredible playwrights.

IT IS 'SERIOUS' ABOUT THIS ACTING THING

IN FOCUS

RICHARD CROUSE
SCENE@METRONWS.CA

Justin Timberlake is many things: music superstar, a booze baron (he owns a brand of tequila called 901), and all round mogul with a clothing line, restaurants and a record label.

All that at just 30 years of age. But like so many singing stars before him, it seems what he really wants to do is act.

In fact, he once said he believes it was always in the cards for him to be an actor.

"I got a phone call when I was 14 saying that there's a record company that's going to sign me. But two weeks before that, the plan was to drive to Los Angeles for TV pilot season. So I guess everything works out the way it's supposed to."

Fate aside, is his desire to act justified?

From his film debut in the 2000 Disney Channel movie Model Behavior to this weekend's Friends with Benefits, there have been the highest of highs and the lowest of lows.

He's earned praise from his co-stars. "I only had a couple of scenes with him but he did a really great job," said his Alpha Dog co-star Bruce Willis.

But critics and bloggers haven't always been so kind. "Dear Justin Timberlake," read a 2010 blog headline, "STOP ACTING!"

Forgettable supporting roles in flops like Edison, Black Snake Moan and Southland Tales did little to enhance his reputation, but didn't hurt it much either.

Everything changed when he was cast in The Social Network. His take on the fast talking Sean Parker, inventor of Napster and an early supporter of Facebook, was his breakthrough and won praise from critics.

That inspired performance, coupled with hilarious guest shots on Saturday Night Live have earned him the respect of the industry and fans, but he still doesn't have his pick of roles.

Even though he didn't get the lead in The Green Lantern ("I don't think I'm the superhero type," he joked), he wants everyone to know he's willing to put himself out there.

"I make no bones about the fact that I have always wanted to work in the forum of film," he says.

"I take this seriously."

With the Harry Potter films behind her, Emma Watson is heading back to school, except she'll be attending Oxford University instead of heading back to her U.S. university, according to ABC News.

Though she does admit that she enjoys how she feels less famous in the U.S. than in the U.K.

"I suddenly felt very claustrophobic. I thought, 'I can't stay here, I won't be able to concentrate, I won't be left alone,'" she says. "I don't want to put a negative light on it, as if I was escaping or anything like that. I think I wanted to meet people my own age and just be normal for a bit." ● METRO

Slowing down in Penticton

► There's nothing like a little wine therapy and al fresco dining to soothe the senses ► Retreat to Okanagan's relaxing wine country

GIZELLE LAU
LIFE@METRONWS.CA

A life lived in the fast lane is never as blatantly obvious as when you're travelling, where access to the Internet — let alone a reliable 3G network — is limited, life/news updates via Twitter are not at your fingertips and there's no such thing as a fast food joint for a quick meal.

On the southern rim of Lake Okanagan, British Columbia's increasingly prominent wine region, you'll find townships like Summerland, Penticton and Naramata where "slow" is a way of life.

Slowing down begins in Naramata at Red Rooster Winery where every Friday morning, yoga instructor Teresa G. Maurer of Re:Flexions Studio in Penticton, leads Yoga D'Vine, a morning of yoga and sun salutes in the vineyard under the bright blue sky, accompanied with a light lunch on the terrace with wine and chocolate tastings.

Next up, more tabletop wine therapy on the massage table at Beyond Wrap-ture. With four locations throughout the valley, including one Summerland Waterfront Resort, this wine country day spa offers a specialized Vinotherapy Massage. Products like the spa's grape pip scrub and grape-seed massage oil are known to have powerful antioxidant properties and are made in-house using leftover grape pips, stems and skins from the winemaking process.

Finish off the evening at Local Lounge & Grille just steps from the spa, where local cuisine and seasonally inspired dishes set the stage for one of the best wine menus in the region, offering exclusively British Columbia VQA wines from the Okanagan Valley.

Slowing down can also mean ditching the car. Bring your own bike or rent one from Freedom The Bike Shop in downtown Penticton and cycle from winery to winery through the hilly, vine-filled landscape or along the historic Kettle Valley Railway bike trail. If you want to get your feet wet, Hoodoo Adventures offers winery tours via kayak.

In Penticton and nearby areas like Cawston, the centre for organic fruit and vegetable growers in the region, even food gets the slow treatment. Here, a passion for regional produce that has been organically, responsibly and ethically grown overflows in many local chefs, most notably Dana Ewart and Cameron Smith of Joy Road Catering.

During the summer on Thursdays and Sunday nights, Joy Road Catering showcases the terroir and bounty of the Okanagan by turning it into a beautiful, sensual al fresco dining experience at God's Mountain Estate.

Getting there

Visit the Okanagan by flying into Penticton Regional Airport or Kelowna International Airport via Air Canada or WestJet airlines or take the five-hour drive from Vancouver.

Great eats, no effort required

► With the summer weather making everyone dread standing over a hot stove for too long, a sandwich-and-salad combo is perfect ► This isn't your regular ham and cheese on toast

MATTHEW MEAD/ THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

► Toasting the sandwich offers a great contrast to the cream cheese.

In a moment of vacation desperation, my son's dream sandwich was born.

It was late. My son was hungry, tired and cranky. We'd just arrived at our rental apartment and there was virtually no food in the refrigerator.

All I could scrounge were a couple slices of whole-wheat bread, a bit of sliced ham and some cream cheese. So I combined them into what was a surprise instant (and much lauded by the six-year-old set) hit that went on to become my son's new go-to sandwich.

Now that we're back home, I decided to play with it a bit and see if I could up the nutrition.

After all, if my son is going to eat this sandwich all the time, the bread shouldn't be the peak of its nutritional profile.

So I added some baby spinach and oil-packed sun-dried tomatoes. Now it wasn't just delicious, but also ever-so-slightly more nutritious. The flavours also were significantly more sophisticated. Which meant I no longer minded indulging in one myself.

Though I call for toasting the sandwich, you can skip that part. You also can

Ingredients:

- 60 g (2 oz) cream cheese
- 2 slices whole-wheat sandwich bread
- 125 ml (1/2 cup) baby spinach leaves
- 5 oil-packed sun-dried tomatoes, drained and patted dry
- 3 slices deli-sliced ham
- Ground black pepper
- Cooking spray

toast it, then let it cool and pack it for lunch. The toasting adds a pleasant crunch that is nice even when the sandwich isn't warm.

Preparation:

1 Spread cream cheese evenly over 1 side of each slice of bread. Top 1 slice with spinach, sun-dried tomatoes and ham. Season ham with black pepper, then finish sandwich with remaining slice of bread, cream cheese side in.

2 Heat small skillet over medium. Coat pan with cooking spray. Add sandwich and toast for 4 minutes on each side. Serve immediately.

Preparation:

2 Arrange sliced tomatoes on individual plates in a circle (4 slices per plate). Place red onion rings on top of the tomatoes but away from tomato edges. Place 5 orange sections around onion rings closer to centre. Cut stems off arugula close to the top, wash. Place bunch in centre of each plate. Dress with vinaigrette and serve immediately.

From lunch to landing the job

STUDENT VOICE

AKSHAY KOCHAR
TALENTEGG.CA

It was March, university would be done in another month and I had yet to put any thought into what I wanted to do next. It didn't help that everyone would ask, "So, you're almost done. Any jobs lined up?"

I'm sure every student reading this can relate.

During that time, I was interning at Guardly, a position I had obtained after seeing it on TalentEgg. I was learning a lot about the technology community in Toronto, and was amazed at the quality of start-ups that the city was producing. During this internship, and with a little help from one of my university professors, I found Agility CMS, a content management company.

I contacted one of the co-founders and introduced myself. Thankfully, he was willing to take some time out of his day to do an informational interview with me over lunch. This was a great experience as it allowed me to learn more about his company and the industry as a whole.

We kept in touch after that lunch via email and, about a month later when a position became available, he asked me if I was interested in going through the interview process.

So, one lunch interview, two phone interviews, two in-person interviews and a full reference check later, I graciously accepted Agility's offer to become their new project co-ordinator.

I strongly urge employers to take the risk on recent graduates.

Find out more about which program they took and what types of courses were involved. There are so many new programs out there that give students a tremendous amount of knowledge and experience.

For instance, the Digital Enterprise Management program at the University of Toronto Mississauga enables students to learn about business, marketing, design, project management and entrepreneurship. This broad skill-set allows the recent graduate to apply themselves in a vast array of positions in any company.

Sure, someone who has worked in the industry may have some advantages over a recent graduate, however, I can confidently say that because recent graduates have the urge to continue learning, they can apply themselves just as efficiently.

For students, I cannot stress enough the importance of networking in any way possible.

Whether it's at a formal networking event or in the line-up of a fast food restaurant. Perhaps the person about to order a foot-long chicken teriyaki sub is actually the CEO of that marketing company you've been trying to apply at. Be ready, your elevator pitch just became your Subway pitch.

It is also important to build a personal relationship with the company you are trying to apply to. The best way to do this is to send an email to whomever you think can help you obtain the position you want. This could be the VP of the department you want to work in, or the head of HR. TALENTEgg.CA, CANADA'S ONLINE CAREER RESOURCE FOR STUDENTS AND RECENT GRADS, WANTS TO HEAR YOUR STUDENT VOICE. SHARE IT AT TALENTEgg.CA.

What I learned

Key take-aways from Akshay's experience:

- Informational interviews are a great way to learn about an industry or a specific job within an industry. They also provide you with a contact that could, if you're lucky, lead to a job down the road.
- Look for jobs in unconventional places and always be prepared with a quick pitch that explains what you can bring to the company.

Canadian gets the assist

- Hesjedal helps Hushovd win rainy 16th stage of Tour de France
- Voeckler still leads race, but Contador and Evans make gains

Canadian Ryder Hesjedal raised his arms in jubilation as he crossed the finish line yesterday.

The 30-year-old from Victoria was third, but he had just scored a glorious assist to help Garmin-Cervelo teammate Thor Hushovd win the 16th stage of the Tour de France.

Hesjedal, who came into the stage 32nd overall in the standings, attacked midway through the 162.5-kilometre course. While others fell back or launched their own attacks, he persevered.

There were just three men left in the rain as the finish line neared: Hesjedal and two Norwegians, Hushovd and Edvald Boasson Hagen.

The Canadian led the way, looking back at Hagen on his shoulder as he shifted position in the final sprint. Hushovd, one of cycling's marquee men, hung back and then accelerated while Hagen wasn't looking. He rocketed over the line, with his Norwegian rival second and a delighted Hesjedal third, two seconds behind.

It was Garmin-Cervelo's fourth stage win of the Tour.

"It was great. This Tour's been so good for our team," Hesjedal told The Canadian Press.

"For me, there's been highs and lows. To have a big high today and ride well, it's definitely going to be remembered."

Hesjedal showed his endurance during the stage and then his smarts at the end.

"Thor's obviously one of the fastest guys in the world and so is Edvald, so we just had to make sure we played it exactly right to come up with the victory," he said.

Hesjedal's own general classification hopes were dashed the first week when he lost time and was hurt in a crash on Stage 7.

But he continues to ride for the team, supporting American Tom Danielson while contributing to the Garmin-Cervelo overall campaign — the times from the top three riders from each squad is counted in the team standings.

Hesjedal was seventh in last year's race, when he had two fourth-place individual stage finishes.

He moved up four places to 28th overall after his heroics yesterday and stands 20 minutes 36 seconds behind leader Thomas Voeckler of France.

Stamkos had been a re-

Engine

The Accent's slick new body styles are matched with an equally slick 1.6-litre engine that produces 138 horsepower and 123 pound-feet of torque. Both numbers are substantially better than the outgoing 1.6's 110 horses and 106 pound-feet.

Since the Accent's curb weight remains essentially unchanged, the higher output gives the Accent considerably more pep.

Shape: All in the family

The sedan's new sheetmetal contains Hyundai's familial shape that has already been imprinted on the Sonata and Elantra models, especially the deeply sculpted crease extending along the doors and fenders and ending with a hiked-up rear deck.

The same is essentially true for the wagon-like hatchback, although its sweeping roofline, curvaceous liftgate and dominating taillamps make it the most practical Accent and arguably the best looking of the two.

Direct injection, emissions

The new powerplant benefits from the latest in engine-building technology, including direct injection whereby precise amounts of highly pressurized fuel is sprayed into the combustion chamber (instead of through the intake manifold) which means more power and reduced emissions.

As well, a special hard diamond-based coating has been added to the engine's camshaft components to reduce valvetrain friction.

Finally there's an Accent that boasts style

MALCOLM GUNN

WHEELBASE MEDIA

What took Hyundai so long?

For six long model years (2006-'11), the Korea-based automaker kept churning out the same basic Accent econo-car while the competition was busy updating or completely renewing its basic-transportation offerings.

Whatever the reason, the long wait ends now with the release of the fourth-generation Accent duo.

The outgoing two-door hatch and four-door sedan could never be considered the sharpest models on the lot. With their understated blob-like shapes, both represented the last vestiges of Hyundai's school of anonymous automotive styling and would have made ideal conveyances for those entering a witness-protection program. They also remained relatively spartan and lacked the assortment of standard and optional features that customers expect in their small cars these days. All that has passed. The 2012 Accent, still available in four-door sedan and hatchback formats, appears to be yet another game-changing model for Hyundai. This one should present a formidable challenge to such pack leaders as the Honda Fit, Ford Fiesta and Mazda2, to highlight just a few.

Given the sedan's $14,700 on-the-street base price, it appears that small-car power, hospitable roominess, fuel efficiency and affordability are at the top of the Accent's menu. And at long last, so is style.

Returning to the scene of the ride

► If you're going to solve mysteries, you need to look cool doing it
► And these private investigators were some of the coolest

MALCOLM GUNN
WHEELBASE MEDIA
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

The origin of the suave and sophisticated private eye dates back to the 1930s with Humphrey Bogart's Sam Spade character in the Maltese Falcon.

But either by design or happenstance, the vehicles that transported the made-for-TV gumshoes to their weekly crime scenes have become as well known as the actors themselves.

Magnum P.I. (1980-'88)
Tom Selleck's Hawaii-based character had the mustache, the muscles and the muscle in the form of a Ferrari 308.

In the show, the Ferrari belonged to Robin Masters, an unseen benefactor who would "lend" his car to Magnum to work on cases. How tough a gig could that be? Show regulars will notice that the Ferrari was replaced with newer models as the seasons wore on.

Colombo (1971-'78, 1989-'03)
The rumpled police detective (perfectly played by the late Peter Falk) drove a beat-► Magnum P.I. popularized the Ferrari 308 in 1980s.

up 1959 Peugeot 403 cabriolet that appeared to be equally trashed.

Either poor old Colombo was stuck with a heavy alimony tab, or he was a terrible credit risk who couldn't qualify for a car loan to save his life.

Cannon (1971-'76)
William Conrad convincingly portrayed rotund private eye Frank Cannon who seemed to be always fighting crime from behind the wheel of a Mark-series Lincoln Continental coupe. Each season, that model year's Lincoln seemed to grow larger

The Rockford Files (1974-'80)
This show featured one of the best instrumental themes and one of Hollywood's most popular stars in the person of James Garner.

As easy-going detective Jim Rockford, Garner drove a base Pontiac Firebird Esprit, instead of a flashier, snorkel-hooded Firebird Formula or a Trans Am complete with giant "flaming-chicken" hood decal. But the understated tan-coloured Esprit was the perfect match for Garner's low-key acting style.

Starsky and Hutch (1975-'79)

Technically, Paul Michael Glaser as David Starsky and David Soul as Ken "Hutch" Hutchinson were police officers, but they looked and acted so much like private investigators that they've been included here as honorary members.

What passed for their "cop car" was actually a Gran Torino — a series of 1975 and '76 models, actually — supplied by Ford that the actors nicknamed the Striped Tomato. The fans loved its outlandish paint scheme and Ford even produced 1,000 cars that featured the same paint scheme.

1 You can make changing a flat tire easier and a lot quicker with the Roadside Automatic Jack from Automotive Specialty Tools. Once it has been positioned beneath one of your vehicle's lift points, you simply plug the electrical cord into the cigarette-lighter socket (or similar power source) and hit the control button. In a matter of seconds, the jack's motor will lift the car. etoolcart.com.

2 Eagle One has landed yet again with a brand new product designed to take care of your car's waxing needs more quickly and easily. According to the company, Eagle One claims its new Gel Wax performs as well as conventional paste wax, but requires less time since you don't have to wait for the product to haze or dry before wiping clean. The carnuba-based wax also won't leave a white residue behind, as do some other polishes, and will work on black trim and molding without causing discolouration. eagleone.com.

3 Losing your vehicle is easy when it's parked in a large, busy lot or parkade and you're gabbing on the cell phone on the way inside. That problem is history with one of the tracking systems from The Auto-Finder. Each unit consists of an in-car beacon and a battery-powered remote finder. Take a look at our sample story and then get writing!

Every road trip offers...

... memories to last a lifetime, but my most memorable was spent touring the Rocky Mountains in Alberta with my family. My parents packed my brother and me, aged 9 and 13, into our family SUV for a two-week trip.

I'm sure there were squabbles along the way, but when I look back I recall wonderful moments. I remember sunny days, stopping for ice cream at viewpoints along the highway, singing along to popular radio hits as we wound through the mountains and countless giggles as we entertained ourselves with silly road trip games like "I Spy".

But by far, the best part of our road trip was an unexpected adventure along the way. On an excursion to Lake Louise we took a wrong turn, and found ourselves driving down a secluded road underneath a canopy of trees, all alone except for an occasional sighting of wildlife. The views were spectacular and no one was in a hurry to return to the highway, so we carried on.

Eventually, the pavement became bumpy gravel. Crawling along at 10km an hour, we finally came to the end of the road – with a magnificent vista in view: sparkling turquoise water encircled by rugged mountains. Rather than reaching our planned destination, we had accidentally discovered Lake Moraine, a pristine glacial lake, far away from the touristy crowds. We sat still and quiet in the car, taking in the breathtaking view and realizing how lucky we were to get lost after all.

BACKING UP HARDER THAN BREAKING UP

AUTO PILOT

MIKE GOETZ
DRIVE
@METRONEWS.CA

There are more back-up songs than back-up songs, which is strange, because more people get hurt backing up.

And this is real, physical hurt, not that flakey emotional stuff you can fix with a bit of Haagen-Dazs.

"Backing up is the highest risk activity you can do with a vehicle," says Brain Patterson of the Ontario Safety League. "If a crash is the result of a low-speed impact, chances are someone was backing up."

The Ontario Safety League has been around since 1913 and is recognized as one of North America's leading traffic safety organizations. Its mandate is "safety through education." Needless to say, the League has looked at a lot of carnage since 1913.

"We seem to be making headway in a whole bunch of areas," notes Patterson.

"But there are two areas that are constantly at issue. Male drivers between 16 and 24. And crashes involving backing up."

Patterson has a few theories on why backing up is still a heavy hitter on the unsafe scene.

He feels a lot of people don't do it enough to get proficient at it. And he feels people are just less courteous these days. "I'm walking through a parking lot, say at a shopping mall. I see you backing up, but instead of walking in front of the vehicle, I keep walking behind your moving vehicle."

Patterson and I were speaking at a parking lot, where Canadian Tire was allowing media to sample its exclusive line of back-up related safety products from Yada: Rearview Mirror Back-up Camera with Speakerphone (via Blue Tooth); Dash Mounted Back-up Camera; Back-up Sensor System; Blind Spot Assist System.

These safety systems are becoming increasingly available on new vehicles, especially on larger and/or luxury ones. And good thing, too. Because as Mandi Paquin-Johnson of Canadian Tire notes, "bigger vehicles mean bigger blind spots."

So if you're not quite ready, willing, or able to shell out for a new vehicle equipped with all these features, you now have the option of adding them to your current ride. The Yada line runs from $149 to $249 (plus installation, though some folks will be able to do it themselves).

I think rear-view cameras are awesome. Not only do they allow you to back up with precision, they flush out any low-lying obstacles (or small folk!) that are directly behind your vehicle, and therefore undetectable from any side or rear-view mirror. Patterson notes these electronic systems are especially helpful to drivers who have physical limitations, especially with upper body mobility.

Of course there is a caveat... "They don't replace good driving practices. They enhance good driving practices," says Patterson.

Regenerative braking: Hybrids slow down to quickly recharge

Hybrid vehicles use a combination of a gasoline engine and an electric motor to power them. The electricity comes from a battery pack that is continuously recharged while the car is being driven, mostly through a process called regenerative braking.

"Regenerative braking means that we decelerate the vehicle via the hybrid drivetrain," says Claus Halder, development engineer for recuperation and brake systems at Audi in Germany.

The company will introduce its first production hybrid model, the Q5 Hybrid SUV, in the Canadian market next year.

Like most hybrids available today, the Q5 Hybrid runs on its gasoline engine,

DRIVING FORCE

JILL McINTOSH

on the battery alone, or on a combination of the two, depending on the type of driving and how hard the driver is accelerating.

When the driver has his foot on the throttle (the "gas pedal"), power is sent to turn the drive shafts, which then turn the wheels. Depending on driving conditions, this power is provided by the electric motor, by the gasoline engine, or with the two working together.

When the driver takes his foot off the throttle, the electric motor automatically reverts and works like a generator. It takes the spinning power of the drive shafts and converts it into electricity, almost the same way as a waterfall spins a turbine to produce power. This electricity is then fed back into the battery to recharge it.

A beneficial side effect is that as the electric motor converts the spinning energy, it also slows down the drive shafts, which in turn slows down the car.

Although the electric motor is not connected to the conventional braking system, the regenerative system captures even more energy when the driver uses the brakes, which in turn puts more electricity back into the battery.

Sportiness and style in a crossover

► Rogue loved for fuel-efficient performance and handling

SECOND GEAR

JUSTIN PRITCHARD
DRIVE@METRONEWS.CA

Nissan's replacement for the XTrail, Rogue competes with machinery like the Ford Escape, Dodge Nitro and Honda CR-V with an eye for sportiness and style.

All Rogue models got a 2.5-litre, 170-horsepower four-cylinder engine with a Continually Variable Transmission (CVT) with available paddle-shift.

Front-wheel drive was standard, and four wheel drive was optional. Rogue's AWD system featured automatic operation and a "lock" mode for low-traction situations.

Trim designations include "S" for a more basic Rogue, and "SL" for higher-end models. AWD, not surprisingly, denotes the presence of the AWD system on either trim level.

What Owners Like

Rogue owners typically rave about a comfortable ride, plenty of features for the money and the machine's unique design. Most also claim to experience great fuel mileage.

What's the 4-1-1

- Model: : 2008 to 2010 Nissan Rogue.
- Vehicle type: Crossover SUV.

► Nissan Rogue

Sporty handling and all-weather traction round out the list of owner-stated positives.

What Owners Dislike

Numerous Rogue drivers complain of limited rearward visibility that translates into difficulty parking, as well as a small and "busy" instrument cluster. Some owners wish for a quieter ride and more headroom, too.

Common Issues

When test driving a Rogue, be sure to travel at parking-lot speeds with the stereo and climate control fan off, listening for any strange noises from the transmission.

Clicking, grinding, grumbling and popping sounds should not be considered normal, and have been reported by several owners ahead of an in-warranty transmission replacement.

In some cases, a computer reprogramming may solve the CVT noise problem. In either case, if the transmission in the Rogue you're considering is making any strange noises, be sure to have it checked out.

An inspection by a Nissan-trained mechanic is advised for any used Rogue ahead of purchase.

A full check of all cabin electronics is advised, as is a check of the carpeting in the wheelwells and cargo area for potential water leaks from the sunroof drain tubes or hatch seal, respectively.

The Verdict

A used Rogue will likely provide owners with satisfying fuel economy, all-season performance and driving dynamics — though shoppers should seek out a clean bill of health for the CVT transmission from a Nissan mechanic before purchase.

A newer model with plenty of factory warranty remaining is the safest bet.
